The Foxcombe Lodge was officially opened in July 1985 by his Grace the Duke of Marlborough. Formerly a private residence at the turn of the century, the proprietors Jill and Roger Hicks turned it into a warm and friendly family-run hotel. Characterised with individually styled decor, warm colours and a personal welcome, the hotel provides its residents with a restaurant, two bars and beautiful South-facing gardens. Set in the tranquil area of Boars Hill, yet located just 4 miles from both Oxford and Abingdon, the hotel is an ideal base for exploring the University of Oxford, the surrounding picturesque villages of the Cotswolds and Blenheim Palace, the birthplace of Winston Churchill. Above all, Oxfordshire is a county in the very heart of England and full of history.

Hotel's Back Garden

Oxford, noted for its dreaming spires, stunning museums, punting on the Isis has a reputation as a seat of learning. Today it is famed as the home of Inspector Morse, as well as the provider of numerous British Prime Ministers and the occasional American President.

Jill & Roger look forward to welcoming you to their establishment and seeing that you have a warm and comfortable stay. If you would like to enquire about any of the hotel's facilities, please don't hesitate to contact us, all of our staff are only too happy to help.
